WORD UP

The Spoken Word Department has a commitment to provide air time and exposure to local artists, writers and the diverse peoples and communities of Montréal who generally don't have the opportunity to voice their concerns and opinions of the mainstream media. A recent addition in Spoken Word programming is Indian Time: a show focussing on Native Peoples' issues, heard every Wednesday from 18h-19h. CKUT has given an alternative focus and outlook with our coverage of the recent struggles of First Nations People in Kanesatake and Kahnawake. As a community radio station, we are dedicated to providing a forum for understanding, acceptance and the promotion of diversity.

A particularly popular aspect of our Spoken Word programming is our focus Days. This programming consists of ten to twelve hours of air time with in-depth coverage of a specific theme. This summer we had our second annual Gay Day; other themes have included Black Talk during Black History Month and Independant Music Day... In October, stay tuned for Feminist Focus Day.

Take a moment to peruse STATIK, circle your faves and listen...dangerously.

TUNED IN

Supporting the music of Canadian and specifically local artists is a priority for music DJ's at CKUT. As a community radio station we are accessible to local artists attempting to reach an audience. Montreal has a thriving cultural life beyond the big institutional events that we all know and love - CKUT is bringing it into your home on a daily basis. One of the ways in which we do this is by playing self-produced recordings and demo tapes by Canadian artists. If you are a musician interested in having your music played on CKUT, bring it in to us.

CKUT's music department enters the fall with a nearly full slate of programs. I say "nearly" because of a few openings in our schedule as we go to print. I hope you take them as incentive - to check out what kind of new programming we'll be running in the next couple of weeks or even to come in and propose a program to us. CKUT is always eager to broaden our range of programming - if you see a gap in our music coverage that you can fill, we'd like to hear from you.

Some of those open spaces are due to the departure of programmers who have been with us for a long time. We wish the best of luck to Big Maybelle of Harlem Nocturne, The Duchess of Dead Air, John Moore of Guttenberg's Record Player & Greg Miller of Lost Wax Method.

Live music broadcasts are back on CKUT this fall. Once a month, we'll be airing a selected show live from les Foufounes Electriques. Every Friday at midnight during Cloud of Snakes & Parrots, we're broadcasting a series of new music concerts recorded live at New York's Knitting Factory.

In addition to the music programming we do on the radio, we also co-present concerts by local and international artists. In the coming months, we'll be presenting shows such as Nick Cave, Sonic Youth, Mecca Normal, the finals of Station 10's Battle of the Bands competition and the jazz series Etats Soniques.

PAR LES MOTS

Le département de Créations Orales s'engage à procurer du temps d'antenne aux artistes locaux, écrivains et aux diverses personnes et communautés de Montréal qui n'ont généralement pas l'occasion de faire entendre leurs préoccupations et leurs opinions dans les médias commerciaux. Le département vient tout juste d'ajouter à sa programmation Indian Time: une émission spécialisée dans les dossiers autochtones, diffusée tous les mercredis de 18h à 19h. Les luttes récentes des Premières Nations à Kanesatake et à Kahnawakeont reçu une diffusion altérnative a CKUT. En tant que station de radio communautaire, nous tenons à mettre sur pied un forum où la compréhension, l'acceptation et la promotion de la diversité se fait entendre.

Un aspect particulier de la diffusion alternative consiste également en nos journées focus: dix à douze heures de diffusion alternative en profondeur d'un thème particulier. Cet été nous avons organisé notre deuxième Journée Gaie annuelle; Black Talk durant le mois d'Histoire Noire et la Journée de la Musique Indépendante sont d'autres thèmes que nous avons couvert... Restez à l'écoute pour la Journée Féministe en octobre.

Prenez le temps de repérer vos émissions favorites dans STATIK et écoutez nous...dangéruesement.

BRANCHE

Le programmation musicale le CKUT vise avant tout à promouvoir la musique des artistes Canadiens et locaux. En tant que radio communautaire, nous sommes accessibles aux artistes locaux qui veulent rejoindre un auditoire. La vie culturelle de Montréal ne se confine pas aux gros événements reconnus: CKUT en est conscient et vous en fait part quotidiennement. Nous présentons ainsi l'underground montréalais en jouant les démos et les enregistrements produits à petite échelle. Si vous êtes un-e musicien-ne qui voudrait faire entendre ses compositions sur nos ondes, faites-nous parvenir des enregistrements.

Le départment de musique de CKUT entreprend l'automne avec une programmation quasi-complète. Il reste en effet quelques ouvertures qui vous motiveront, j'espère, à écouter pour savoir ce qui les combleront et, même, à nous proposer un projet d'émission. CKUT est toujours prêt à agrandir son éventail: Si vous constatez qu'il y a des sujets qui ne sont pas traités dans nos émissions et proposer, n'hésitez pas à nous contacter.

Quelques unes de ces ouvertures sont dûs au départ de programmeurs vétérans. C'est la meilleure des chances que nous souhaitons beaucoup de succès à Big Maybelle de Harlem Nocturne, the Duchess of Dead Air, John Moore de Guttenberg's Record Player et Greg Miller de Lost Wax Method.

La programmation de musique en direct est de retour à CKUT cet automne. Une fois par mois, nous diffuserons un concert choisi en direct des Foufounes Electriques. Chaque vendredi à minuit durant Cloud of Snakes and Parrots, nous diffuserons une série de concerts de nouvelle musique enrégistrés en direct de Knitting Factory à New York.

En plus de notre programmation musicale, nous co-présentons des concerts d'artistes locaux ou internationaux. Dans les prochains mois, nous présentons des concerts tels Nick Cave, Sonic Youth, Mecca Normal, les finales de la competition Battle of the Bands de Station 10 et les séries jazz États Soniques.

About the Cover.... Apropos de la Couverture

À la page couverture: un membre du groupe solidarité Nitassinan-Notre Terre mettant les touches finales à la peinture murale coin Berri et Cherrier. Il s'agit d'une oeuvre à laquelle ont participé une douzaine d'artistes dont quatre montréalais. Après six mois de préparitifs et de consultations avec les autochtones de la peninsule du Québec-Labrador, la peinture de quelques 12 par 13 mètres de grandeur fut completée en août, sous l'oeil vigilant de deux Innus.

Le projet a été conçu comme un moyen privilégié pour informer les montréalais et montréalaises des vols à basse altitude de l'OTAN qui poursuivent quotidiennement au-dessus du territoire Innu. Non seulement ces vols contribuent à l'accroissement des activités militaires dans le Nord canadien, mais aussi, ils mettent en peril la santé et le mode de vie des Innus. En plus de polluer les territoires du grand Nord, ces vols sont directement reliés a la baisse de la fertilité des animaux de chasse, et à la migration des caribous.

On peut voir, à travers cette murale, une répresentation de la vie traditionelle du peuple Innu qui doit poursuivre sa lutte contre les forces opposantes. Dans le coin gauche intérieur on apperçoit le portrait de Mani Aten Antane, qui malgré une maladie prolongée, a continué la lutte contre la désinformation et l'ignorance du public en face des vols à basse altitude et autres essais militaires, par voie de conférences à travers le pays.

On the cover of this updated program guide for CKUT-Radio McGill is a photograph of one of the members of the collective who worked on the Nitassinan-Nôtre Terre mural. The mural, 12 by 13 metres in size, was painted during the month of August in downtown Montréal at the corner of Berri and Cherrier. It had been planned and designed over a period of 6 months with the guidance of two Innu and four artists from Montréal to protest the daily low level flights over Labrador. Not only do these flights pollute the land by dumping petrol fuel in their wake, but have destroyed the traditional lifestyle of the Innu by altering the behaviour of the animals upon which they have depended upon for their livelihood. For example, the Innu havé observed that the fertility and migrational patterns of caribou being changed, as well as the health of their own people. These flights have contributed to the increasing militarization of Canada's North.

The mural was conceived as a way to bring the low level flight testing to the attention of the public at large, and a rare exchange between Montréal and Innu artists. During the painting of the mural, the site became a focal point for activists, passersby and residents of the neighbourhood, to discuss both the flight testing and the general situation of the native peoples in Canada.

The central image of the mural shows the traditional way of life the Innu are fighting to maintain. Surrounding this image are smaller representations of their struggle to stop these flights through legal recourse and acts of passive resistance. The image on the cover is the portrait of Mani Aten Atane, an Innu activist, who despite her chronic illness continued to give lecture tours to protest the unnecessary flight testing.
